

[To all students who conduct research activities] Students' research activities in the laboratory

Due to the infection control measures against the novel coronavirus (COVID-19), Niigata University has requested suspension of students' research activities in certain places, such as laboratory for the time being.

In the meantime, we ask our students to stay at home. During the period of staying at home, please avoid going out for non-essential or non-urgent purposes.

Regarding the details about when research activities resume, follow the instructions from your academic supervisor.

Students means graduate and undergraduate students who independently conduct their research activities.
