

Far Eastern Federal University

Being the largest university in Eastern Russia and one of the most dynamically developing scientific and educational centers in the Asia-Pacific region, Far Eastern Federal University (FEFU) is proud to continue the legacy of Russian classical culture, science and education.

Over 120 years of its history, Far Eastern Federal University has remained today the main representative of Russian higher education in the Asia-Pacific region, the only Russian university that is a member of the Association of Pacific Rim Universities, the first Russian university with a unique infrastructure in a single, modern campus, and the first Russian university that opened a school specializing in Data Economy.

Situated on the edge of both Europe and Asia, the University follows the most important trends. Accordingly, 2.4 billion rubles has been allocated for FEFU's R&D projects which are conducted in 368 hi-tech laboratories, 20 research and education centers, 22 medical and science research units. The research and development projects are focused on the spheres that are of great global importance. Our projects in oceanography, underwater robotic engineering, and eco-friendly architecture, among others, have gained international recognition.

FEFU cooperates with over 300 international partners from 45 countries around the world as well as prominent international bodies such as the United Nations, UNESCO, G20, BRICS, ASEAN, ASEM, APEC, APRU. Over 20.000 students, including 3.500 international students, are taught by the best Russian instructors and experts and over 160 foreign professors, who give lectures in more than 300 degree programs, 30 of which are conducted in English.
